

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Disclosed is a digital publishing system that receives input from distributed clients cooperatively contributing to a digital magazine for electronic delivery to electronic playback devices such as Internet connected TVs, radios, CD players, and other devices. The disclosed system and method provide shared access to a TV screen and other playback devices' resources. For example, multiple users of the system can have access to various areas of a screen at various times.